3.3(b)(1)

Petr Pithart, a Civic Forum leader, expressed concern in a recent interview that some elements of the secret police may be going underground. [Redacted]

6.2(d)

The government is taking steps to restructure the Interior Ministry; [Redacted] appointed trusted deputies, abolished internal surveillance organizations, formed independent commissions to assess the activities of the secret police, and begun investigations of ranking Ministry officials for possible criminal activities.

6.2(d)

[Redacted]

A more serious problem is the government's need to sustain the legitimate law enforcement functions of the Interior Ministry. The Civic Forum has already had to appeal to the population to cooperate with the uniformed police force and to refrain from harassing the police. [Redacted]
