Information received from Confidential [redacted] reflects that the personnel of the Soviet Consulate in Los Angeles expected the arrival of someone to represent the Soviet motion picture industry on the West Coast and that his arrival was anticipated for a considerable period of time prior to August 9, 1943, on which date he arrived. [redacted] further advised that upon his arrival KOLOTOZOV was readily accepted by members of the Consulate as the person to fill this position and as such was feted by them and introduced by them to various persons in the movie colony and other people in contact with the Soviet Consulate. During a visit made by GREGORI KHEIFETS, Vice Consul from the Soviet Consulate in San Francisco, between October 24 and 30, 1943, KOLOTOZOV was contacted twice at his home by KHEIFETS. A confidential source of information advised that during the first part of October, approximately October 3-6, subject KOLOTOZOV made a trip to San Francisco. This same source indicates that on October 9, 1943, subject departed to New York City where he has remained up to and including the date of this report. (S) u

An item dated July 5, 1943, at Moscow carried in the July 6 issue of the Times stated that KOLOTOSOFF, a Georgian by birth and a Soviet film producer, was to come to Hollywood as a representative of the Soviet film committee which controls the production and distribution of all Soviet and foreign films in Moscow. The item further stated that the subject would be the first Soviet representative to make a permanent position in Hollywood.

Subject allegedly was originally a chauffeur from Tiflis, who later studied at the Georgian Academy of National Art, where he became a studio director. It was indicated that he recently cooperated in making a picture about Leningrad entitled "Invincible".

Special Agent [redacted] received information from Confidential [redacted] indicating that there was to be a reception for subject KOLOTOZOV at the Mocambo on Sunset Boulevard on August 22, 1943, from 4 to 7 P.M. This source stated that he did not intend to go to this affair and therefore put his invitation at the disposal of the office. This invitation stated that the National Council of Soviet-American Friendship would give a reception in honor of subject and wife on the above date and that there would be a showing of the subject's newest film, "The Unconquerable". (S) u

This invitation was later given to Confidential [redacted] who agreed to attend the reception and to report her observations. On August 24 this source gave the following information to Special Agents [redacted] [redacted]. She advised that she had attended the reception from 4 to 6:30 at which time the affair broke up owing to the fact that subject's picture could not be exhibited because of fire restrictions. She indicated that the receiving line at the reception was composed of subject and his wife, the Soviet Consul, [redacted] who presented the guests, and Mrs. HARRIS who acted as an interpreter for the subject and his wife who speak no English. (S) u

Throughout the reception the Soviet Consul moved about among the guests considerably and appeared to informant to be well acquainted in the film colony. Several short talks were made at the reception first by Dr. THOMAS L. HARRIS, who spoke on Exchange of Cultural Ideas between the United States and U. S. S. R. HARRIS further mentioned that meetings to foster better cultural relations with the Soviet Union were anticipated and that persons interested in such activities should address him at the Arcade Building, Los Angeles. (S) u

Later CHARLIE CHAPLIN addressed the group stating, "There is a great deal of good in Communism. We can use the good and segregate the bad." He also stated, "I am not a Communist; I am just a broken down comedian." (S) u

Various newspaper articles have appeared in and around Los Angeles regarding the subject and a few of these articles are noted as follows:

1. The "Daily Variety" on September 9 carried an article which indicated that MIKHAIL KOLOTOZOV spoke on the 8th of September at a luncheon at the Beverly Wilshire Hotel given in his honor, and in his speech he emphasized the interest taken by people of the Soviet Union in American pictures. KOLOTOZOV said that his present visit here is a direct result of his countrymen's interest in American film offers. He said, "I am here not alone because of the interest of the Soviet people in American pictures, but really because of the interest of Soviet people in American people and because the motion picture is the best medium through which one people may learn about another. It is no exaggeration to say that America is the colossus of nations to the Soviet people, because of its great efficiency and its moral characteristics."

2. The "Hollywood Reporter" on September 13, 1943, contained an article which stated that LEONID ANTINOV, special representative of the Soviet Cinema Committee in the United States leaves the United States for a new post in London and that his work would be continued by subject KOLOTOZOV.

3. The Los Angeles "Times" on August 23 carried an article with regard to the reception given KOLOTOZOV at the Mocambo, referred to above, and indicated that some five hundred guests assembled for this reception and that the film which was to have been shown in KOLOTOZOV's honor could not be shown due to fire hazards. It further indicated that CHAPLIN in his reception speech declared that an understanding between the Russians and "us" would prove beneficial in the "post war peace", and urged the sending of an American delegation to Moscow to study not only films but politics as well. This article indicated that CHAPLIN commented as noted above regarding his being a Communist and added that he wondered "audibly" if Representative MARTIN DIES was in the house and then continued, "I'm glad I'm not a ballet dancer--if I were I might be banished from the country." He added that he plays a little tennis himself but he doubted if that could be used against him.

4. The "People's World" on August 28, 1943, carried an article written by VIRGINIA WARNER captioned "Soviet Director honored by Colony". This article stated that subject KOLOTOZOV was already known to the country as the director of "Wings of Victory" which is a screen story of the life of the famous Soviet flyer, VALERIE CHKALOV, and also the more recent "Siege of Leningrad" on which he collaborated with SERGEI GERASIMOV. This article continued by stating that the Soviet Emissary, a handsome man of forty, worked his way up from a job as a mechanic in a cinema theater to his present prominence as a director. Madam ELENA YUNGER KOLTOZOV, who accompanied him, the article comments, could write a chapter of her own because she is an actress of the stage and screen and founder of the Children's Theater. She was also reported to have been in Leningrad during the siege.

This article states that in the movement toward greater friendship between the United States and U. S. S. R., cultural relations are
