July 29, 1954
John F. Weber, 'Thinking of Syngman Rhee'

Citation:
“John F. Weber, 'Thinking of Syngman Rhee',” July 29, 1954, History and Public Policy Program Digital Archive, B-039b-017, Unofficial Correspondences, President Rhee's Correspondences, Syngman Rhee Institute, Yonsei University.
https://digitalarchive.wilsoncenter.org/document/220096

Summary:
John Weber's poem "Thinking of Syngman Rhee" as sent to Syngman Rhee by Harry Weber.

Original Language:
English

Contents:
- Scan of Original Document
THINKING OF SYNGMAN RHEE
by
John F. Weber
(Born Jan. 18, 1875; Died July 2, 1954)

This rough, uncorrected, pencilled poetic musing was found among miscellaneous papers on a stand in the living room where he died the day following his death. He had anxiously looked for information from Korea while his son was there and some of it he compiled to appear in the local newspaper. He had hoped one day to meet President Rhee. His son presented this "poetic thought" to His Excellency on his visit to Washington D.C., 7/29/54

Son Harry said it was a treat
And great pleasure, Syngman Rhee to meet
One thing made him glad
To be the same age as his Dad

The way each spent his boyhood days
Were so much different in many ways
That would not be hard to understand
Two distant countries, it was planned

Every one is meant to fill his place
Such varied environments each has to face
The same loving Father to guide their feet
No matter what difficulties they had to meet

For some purpose every man was given life
So must carry on through turmoil and strife
After we have done what we have known best
We are promised a better home for Rest

Harry F. Weber, Ph.D.
5401 Carolina Place NW
Washington 16, D.C.